The School of Human Resources & Labor Relations at Michigan State University seeks applicants for a tenure-system position at the Assistant or Associate Professor level. We are particularly interested in applicants with research and teaching interests in any of the following areas: the relationship between workplace practices and various stakeholder outcomes; high performance/involvement work systems; alternative dispute resolution; labor economics from an institutional perspective. We seek applicants with demonstrated records of research and scholarship excellence. Applicants with well established records of sponsored research and/or records of obtaining grant funding will be preferred. A successful candidate will be expected to seek external funding for his/her research. Applicants who also have international and union-management relations expertise will be viewed favorably.

Instructional responsibilities include primarily teaching in our signature Master of Human Resources & Labor Relations program (offered in East Lansing and Troy, Michigan), as well as teaching in our doctoral program and at the undergraduate level. This position is an academic-year (nine-month) appointment with a beginning date of August 16, 2013. Applicants must have completed (or expect to complete prior to appointment) a Ph.D. in a relevant field such as employment and labor relations, labor economics, human resources, sociology, or other related fields and disciplines.

Applicants should complete an application and provide a cover letter outlining one's research and teaching interests, curriculum vitae, writing sample, and three letters of reference. To view the posting and apply for the position go to https://jobs.msu.edu and search on the “Faculty/Academic Staff” tab. Then go to posting #6781. We will begin reviewing applicants October 15, 2012.

The School of Human Resources & Labor Relations strongly encourages applications from women, persons of color, ethnic minorities, veterans, and persons with disabilities. To find out more about the School, visit our website: www.hrlr.msu.edu
