The Department of Economics at the University of Louisville seeks applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position starting August 1, 2015. Pending University approval, there could be an additional opening with same job requirements. The applicant must have a Ph.D. by August 1, 2015. Candidates must demonstrate a strong research potential and a clear commitment to excellence in teaching. The area research is open, but preferences are given toward research in applied microeconomics. Teaching responsibilities will include undergraduate and graduate-level business statistics courses with the opportunity to develop other teaching opportunities. Teaching load and salary are competitive. Summer research support may be negotiated. The Department will have members of its recruiting committee at the Boston ASSA meetings in January 2015.

Candidates must apply online by completing an application form and uploading a CV at www.louisville.edu/jobs, Job Opening ID #30924. In addition, applicants should submit evidence of research accomplishment, demonstration of teaching quality, graduate transcript, curriculum vitae, and three letters of reference to economics@louisville.edu. Application Deadline December 1, 2014. The University of Louisville is an equal-opportunity, affirmative-action employer. The Department website is https://business.louisville.edu/economics/.

The city of Louisville is a great place to live and to work. At a size of nearly 1 million people, the city offers big city benefits with small city comfort. Best of all you get to work with me. If you have any questions, then please direct them to my e-mail jose.fernandez@louisville.edu and not the listserve.